Historical introduction

Presidential Decree No. 6 was the first general amnesty of the Republic of Korea. Issued on 27 September 1948 under the Amnesty Act (Primary 25), together with a decree on commutation (Primary 27), it pardoned persons who had committed listed offences before 15 August 1948, the day the government was inaugurated.

Its long schedule is a record of the legal order the Republic inherited. Items 1 to 40 cite articles of the Criminal Code then applied in Korea, which was the Japanese Criminal Code of 1907 as continued through the colonial Chosŏn Criminal Ordinance; a Korean Criminal Code was not enacted until 1953. Items 41 to 142 name colonial-era ordinances and regulations on medicine, taxes, trade, transport, fisheries, banking, the press, and police offences. Items 143 to 212 name laws, proclamations, ordinances, notices, and regulations of the United States Army Military Government in Korea and the South Korean Interim Government. Article 2 excluded concurrent offences that included serious crimes such as homicide, arson, robbery, and rape.

Text and editorial practice

The Korean text below is the original enactment as recorded by the National Law Information Center (국가법령정보센터), in the hangul-normalized form in which that database presents it, and it was checked character by character against the independent transcription on Korean Wikisource. The English follows the article and paragraph structure of the Korean one to one, without substituting later amended law.

Nothing has been silently corrected. Where the Korean as transmitted contains an evident misprint, a missing word, or an irregular construction, the Korean is left as it stands, the English gives the most probable sense with the printed form in square brackets, and the point is explained in the notes. Square brackets in the English otherwise give transliterations of Korean terms whose institutional meaning does not map neatly onto an English equivalent. Dates in the Tangun era (단기) are kept, with the Common Era year in brackets.

The titles of colonial and occupation-era regulations are translated descriptively so that the reader can see what kind of conduct each covered. They are not the official English titles of those instruments, most of which had none; the Korean names in the facing text remain authoritative. 급 (及) is read as “and,” 우는 (又は) as “or,” and 동상 (同上, “the same”) as referring to the issuing authority named in the preceding item.

Notes and Sources

Translation and context notes

1. Criminal Code article numbers (items 1–40). 형법 refers to the Japanese Criminal Code of 1907, applied in Korea during the colonial period and kept in force after 1945. The article numbers are that code's numbers, not those of the Korean Criminal Code of 1953, and the English does not supply the names of the offences.

2. Repeat offending (items 34, 36, 37, 39). 누범 is rendered "repeat offending." In item 37 the transmitted text reads 루범, evidently a misprint for 누범; it also prints "형 법제252조" with misplaced spacing. Both are kept in the Korean.

3. Item 23. The proviso excludes attempts of the crime under Article 200, although Article 200 is not among the articles listed in that item. The text is translated as transmitted.

4. Vested property (item 37). The proviso treats property vested under Military Government Ordinance No. 33 (1945) as state property for the purpose of the exclusion. Compare the Vested Property Disposal Act (Primary 39).

5. Item 119. 부철유사 is unclear as transmitted. It is probably a misreading of 부첨유사 (富籤類似, "lottery-like"), and the English renders it on that assumption with the printed form shown in brackets.

6. Item 211. The transmitted text reads 미국릉군, evidently a misprint for 미국육군 (United States Army).

7. Occupation instruments (items 143–212). The Korean distinguishes 법률 (laws), 포고 (proclamations), 일반고시 (general notices), 법령 (ordinances), 부령 (department ordinances), and 규칙 (regulations). The English keeps each category distinct. The original English titles of the occupation instruments are not reproduced here.

8. Article 2. The transmitted text has irregular spacing ("대 하여," "제105조 의2"), retained in the Korean. Articles 105-2 to 105-4 and 106 to 107 of the 1907 code concern, respectively, intimidation of witnesses and related offences, and riot.

9. Original and later versions. This edition presents the text as originally enacted. Later amendments have not been inserted, and the English is not a translation of the law currently in force.

10. Source collation. The Korean text was checked against the National Law Information Center record and the Korean Wikisource transcription, which agree. It has not been collated line by line against a photographic copy of the Official Gazette (관보) printing; any variants in the original print should be recorded before a critical facsimile edition is issued.
